Infectious diseases like COVID-19 can disrupt the environments in which children grow and develop. Disruptions to families, friendships, daily routines, and the wider community can have negative consequences for children's well-being, development, and protection. In addition, measures used to prevent and control the spread of COVID-19 can expose children to greater protection risks. Child Protection actors know that delivering safe, appropriate, and timely case management services to vulnerable children, with adequate precautions, is crucial. Together, we are faced with several challenging questions that will be explored during the webinar:

- How do we adapt our case management responses while socially isolating, or during lockdowns?
- How do we prioritize our caseload?
- How do we follow up on high risk cases?
- How are child protection actors in different countries adapting and what can we learn from each other?
